

SEEKING AUTHORS FOR HIP-HOP ARTICLES

The Muse Collaborative, a nonprofit organization in Camden, NJ, is looking for individuals interested in writing articles for its Hip-hop Library. From album reviews to personal stories, critical analysis, original research, and more, the Library is a celebration of culture, creativity, and wisdom.

Articles tend to be between 500 - 2000 words in length and cover a variety of topics. While high-demand albums for articles are always listed on The Muse Collaborative's website, all proposals are considered.

The Muse Collaborative compensates authors for their work when possible. While funding is limited, authors tend to earn $30 - 50 per article.

Individuals interested in publishing should send a brief description of themselves, their proposed article(s), and samples of past work to info@themusecollaborative.org. Resumes are optional, but welcomed.

Authors who consistently provide strong submissions may be contacted for special writing projects in the future.